What Happens in Vegas

INT. HONEYMOON SUITE

ALEX and JANET are sipping champagne in a large hot tub. Candles and soft jazz music surround them. The bright lights of Las Vegas wink in through the windows.

They're both mid-30s, too attractive for their own good, with the air of being people who've never had to work for anything in their lives.

Alex and Janet have been drinking alot.

JANET

You are crazy!

ALEX

I just fiddled with the knobs. The pressure from the water jets did the rest.

JANET

Mmm, creative.

ALEX

I try.

JANET

You - you are maybe the most creative man I've ever met. Is that the right word? Creative. Cree - ate - iff. Iff.

ALEX

If what?

JANET

What if?

ALEX

What if what?

JANET

Okay, okay! - I got an idea. Are you game for a game?

ALEX

Didn't we just play one?

JANET

Mmm, yes. But not that. Let's play 'what if'.

ALEX

Okay. You start.

JANET

Oh, damn, and I wanted to go second. Okay, let's see ... what if you had a million dollars?

ALEX

It wouldn't be much less than we've spent this week.

JANET

So what would you do with it? Besides waste it in Vegas.

ALEX

I'd send my ex a rose every day for the rest of her life.

JANET

Roses? For your ex?

ALEX

She's allergic to them.

JANET

Ha! You're a creep. I totally relate.

ALEX

Thanks.

JANET

And it's your turn.

ALEX

Hmm. What would you do, if you could do anything?

JANET

I don't know ... buy a horse? Go to the moon? No - you know - I'd get married.

ALEX

Really? After Mr. Unincredible?

JANET

I've never done it before. It would be something to tell people about. And I saw this dress.

ALEX
You'd get married for a dress?

JANET
I really want that dress.

Alex gets out of the tub, fills up their glasses. Muses.

ALEX
We never got married either. Tracy and I talked about it. But it never seemed like the right time.

Janet gets out of the tub.

JANET
How about now?

ALEX
She's gone.

JANET
I meant me, you twit.

ALEX Seriously?

JANET
I don't know. Maybe, I guess.
(beat)
Yeah, yeah, I'm serious.

ALEX
But are you sober?

JANET
Are you?

ALEX
I am now.

Beat.

JANET
You know what - forget it.

Janet turns her back, starts toweling off.

ALEX
It's just. I met you a week ago.
We've gone on this crazy ride, and it's been fabulous, but -

Janet begins dressing.

JANET
I wasn't serious.

ALEX
No - you were. And I think.
(beat)
Yeah, I think maybe I am too.

JANET
You mean it?

ALEX
Well, hell, why not?

Alex starts dressing.

ALEX (CONT'D)
We've done everything else there's to do around here.

Someone POUNDS on the suite's front door.

There's a chair holding the door closed.

JANET
Except get kicked out of a hotel.

ALEX
I'm ready when you are.

There's a back door to the suite, with a chair holding that door closed as well.

Alex RIPS the chair OUT OF THE WAY, and they RUN down the hallway, pursued by the HOTEL DETECTIVE.
